

Testimonials

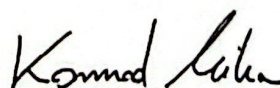

I was looking for someone to create a non-typical website for me with the ability to purchase virtual products. Very few companies were willing to take on something that was, in reality, quite niche, with additional questionable functionality. Classical music is not a subject that attracts wide interest, and that's exactly what I focus on.

I found Sopchy by accident and after a short conversation with Mr. Michal Tumilowicz, it turned out that the Sopchy team already had a solution ready for me, and after a few days, they presented me with an action plan. Mr. Michał and Ms. Kasia guided me through the process of creating my website step by step, presenting different options, possibilities, and solutions. Everything took place online or over the phone, and I personally felt very well taken care of.

I was often immensely grateful to Ms. Kasia for explaining the technological intricacies related to coding in a way that was easy for an artist to understand. The work on my website took about six months, and it was a very productive and motivating time for me. I learned a lot, and whenever I had questions or requests, I was met with a kind response. For several years now, I have been able to rely on constant support from Sopchy, and every query or request I make is handled almost immediately.

The Sopchy team consists of flexible specialists for whom each new project is a challenge, not just another routine task to complete. I get the impression, if it's even possible, that they treat coding and web design as an art form in IT, rather than as boring corporate work.

If I were to choose again, I would definitely go with Sopchy.
